

Taming Adrenaline: Surefire Strategies for Overcoming Speaking Anxiety

Symptoms of Nervousness (What you feel)

- Rapid heart rate
- Dry mouth
- Butterflies or nausea
- Increased perspiration
- Clouded thinking
- Flushing
- Tense or shaking muscles

“Tells” of Nervousness (What you show)

- Small posture/small voice
- Asymmetrical stance
- Hands locked down
- Facial gestures “masked”
- Self-touch
- Eyes and nose not aligned
- Tail wagging

On-the-spot Remedies

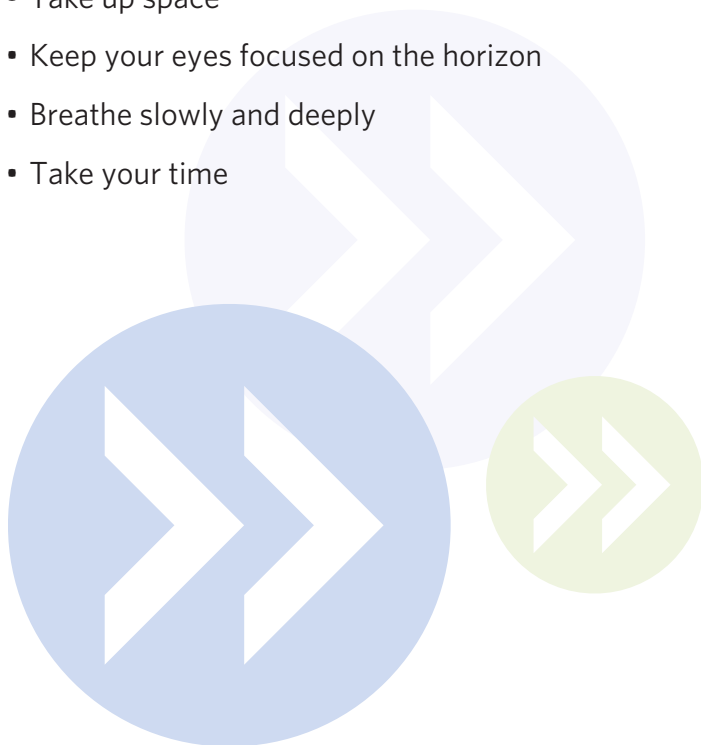

Minimize Physical Symptoms

- Take up space
- Keep your eyes focused on the horizon
- Breathe slowly and deeply
- Take your time

Manage Your Mindset

Remind yourself that:

- Adrenaline isn't unique to you.
- Adrenaline isn't readily visible.
- Adrenaline isn't a reflection of your competency or expertise.
- Adrenaline isn't inherently negative.

Taming Adrenaline: Surefire Strategies for Overcoming Speaking Anxiety

Short-term Strategies

Winning Tactics

- Create bulleted talking points
- Practice out loud
- Show up early and relax
- Focus on other people
- Foster a spirit of generosity
(toward yourself and your audience)

Losing Tactics

- Memorize everything
- Rehearse in your head
- Cram until the last minute
- Be preoccupied with yourself
- Foster a spirit of judgment
(toward yourself and your audience)

Long-term Strategies

- Build on small successes with the BOSS Checklist.
- Play impromptu speaking games with SpeechSkills SoundBites cards.
- Master your skill set with The Credibility Code.
- Find these resources and more at speechskills.com/free

Notes

